

Glen Group ETHICAL TRADING POLICY

Ethical Trading is trade that attempts to be socially and environmentally responsible. It is trade in which companies and their employees should take responsibility for the social and environmental impacts of their business.

Ethical trading is an attempt to address failings of the global trading system such as;

The exploitation of child labour

Modern Slavery

Racial and gender discrimination in employment policies

Poverty wages

The use of chemicals harmful to farmers, consumers, and the environment

Glen Group does not undertake work outside the United Kingdom, trade internationally nor purchase raw materials or goods directly from foreign producers.

Glen Group purchases materials, equipment, and other resources only from reputable suppliers.

Glen Group is certified to BS/EN/ISO 14001, The Environmental Standard and is committed to an Environmental Action Plan, details of which are contained within our Environmental Policy

Glen Group is committed to ensuring that all employees, contract workers, sub-contractors and clients are treated equitably and fairly and with dignity and respect. Glen Group will review its relationships with any company found to be trading unethically or in such a way as to discriminate against, harm or disadvantage their suppliers, employees, or the environment.
